The DIMMER VIEW

by Max Goodwin

Hazard Lurks in Federal Funds

Councilmen of a new city, like newlyweds, go through the earlier stages of the consecrated union with certain decisions to make.

As one acquaintance, shortly back from a honeymoon, once said "I get to make the big decisions such as whether we should give the canal back to the Filipinos; she decides the insignificant ones such as where she spends my paycheck."

I am not underlooking the ability and the intelligence of the City Fathers of Lemon Grove when I offer a piece of advice. Each of the 5 councilmen has made a niche for himself in his chosen profession prior to taking on the problems of this baby city. That signifies capability.

But anyone with big and important decisions to make seeks a little direction now and then, so I pass this material on — the idea being from one of our constant correspondents, State Senator Bill Richardson.

I feel that I can report on Richardson with more impunity than if he were the senator of this district and seeking a good press therein.

Ol' Rich reports of reading a news story about "A Town in Search of 180 Loafers". "I immediately imagined a needy shoe program," he reported.

What he was reading about was the town of Hondo, a small Texas town that had applied to the EDA for federal funds for a civic center for the town of 6,000 inhabitants. The application had been made two years running but had been turned down in each instance.

Why?

Because Hondo's official unemployment rate was below 3 percent (180) and that is below the required minimum of 6 percent (360).

What would 180 loafers do for Hondo? It would fatten the unemployment rate and qualify Hondo for federal funds.

I thought of Lemon Grove as I read the letter sent to President Carter by Hondo mayor Woodrow Glasscock. ". . . if unemployment is what you need to get federal help, then I would like to request from your Federal Employment Agency a list of people who won't work under any circumstances.

"We are a proud people here with a proud heritage born of hard work and enterprise, so trying to get enough locals to quit work so we may qualify is out of the question.

"We will have to import unemployed!"

Decisions such as this will face the L.G. City Fathers sooner or later.

With all public funds comes regulations and restrictions for their use. Government spending dictates the course of our lives. It molds and shapes us according to the visions of public spenders. Consequently, in the case of Hondo, and eventually Lemon Grove public funds will be used to encourage unemployment and to destroy the work ethic.

In a follow-up letter to President Carter, Mayor Glasscock wrote, "Are we looking for a contest as to who can be the laziest? . . . as long as idleness is rewarded above industry, our national work force is in grave danger."

Richardson has some further thoughts such as these:

"Hondo stands among countless victims of the seductive nature of public spending. Under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, fatherless families can receive the most benefits. The result? Isn't it more profitable for fathers to leave home to obtain maximum aid for their families? Aren't we assisting the father right out the door?

"Under Social Security regulations, an elderly couple can receive more money collecting as singles than as a married couple. Doesn't this become a roadblock to elderly widows and widowers who are considering marriage?

"Won't cities where the greatest amount of welfare benefits can be collected attract welfare recipients from cities with lesser payments? The answer is obvious. In addition, the combination of unemployment compensation, food stamps, and other welfare payments can make working just plain "uneconomical." Government spending thus institutionalizes unemployment.

"Schools, too, are realizing the problems of being hooked on government aid. Yale's President has said, "My fear is that there is a growing tendency for the central government to use spending power to prescribe educational policies." Colleges receiving public funds are drowning in the flood of paperwork required to check compliance with government standards. What choice do local school districts, who have become dependent on federal monies, have but to comply with federal busing programs — regardless of local sentiment?

"But even though government spending commands the lives of the recipients, Americans allow their politicians to legislate more and more of it. We face a record federal budget and deficit, and here in California the state budget is at an all-time high. We should realize that no amount of reorganizing the government can change the nature of public spending — we will always be subject to the rules and restrictions of the programs. And as government spending is allowed to balloon, it is strangling the freedom of every citizen."

What other solution can there be for the people of Hondo, and the rest of us, than a fight against our government's runaway spending?

A Note of Whimsicality

"School boss (Superintendent) Bob Sutton can remember when a 'busing decision' was whether to take a Greyhound or Continental.

"Elmer Ringeisen says experience is what keeps you from making the same mistake again — right away.

"Dr. Bob Knauer used to think there was no substitute for a conscience until he got some close neighbors."

SV CoC Objects to Zone Change

The Spring Valley Chamber of Commerce has protested to the County Board of Supervisors a proposed change from "C" zoning for Grand ave. and Troy st. in Spring Valley.

The complaint charges that a less desirable zoning has been recommended by the Valley de Oro Citizens Executive Committee and that owners of property in that area purchased the property as commercial and have paid taxes which were assessed as commercial. Future expansion and development will be the penalty by the change, if made, the Chamber said.

Free enterprise suffers in the process, it was added.

The complaint was made to county officials and news media in a letter dated August 15 and signed by Maurice Peterson, SV CoC President.

NEW SIGN — Gathering to put up a new sign at the Lemon last week were (l-r) artist Dick Chichester, Vice-mayor Robert Burns, Miss Lemon Grove Charlie Gundersen, Old Time Days Chairman Leonard Klein, and Chamber of Commerce Vice President Olin Thompson. Chichester painted a new sign "Best Climate on Earth" by an initiative started by Olin Thompson of the CoC. It was incorrectly reported last week the clean up project was started by another Lemon Grove organization.

Mt. Helix Arrests Total 57 Narc Sweeps to Continue

Seven more drug abuse suspects were picked up in Mt. Helix Park Sunday bringing the total to 57 in a little more than a week.

The park is on a serene spot atop Mt. Helix in La Mesa, has in recent months become a gathering place for drug users and sellers.

Among the 7 arrested Sunday were 2 juveniles. "We intend to continue the sweeps until law abiding citizens who pay taxes for parks, may enjoy them without being hasseled by pot smokers and narcotics users," said Sheriff's Captain George Dodson, commander of the Sheriff's Lemon Grove office.

"From 27 on the first day down to 7 in the most recent raid shows progress," he said. Among the 57 were users of cocaine and heroin, he said.

Dodson said that his objective was to completely clear the mountaintop facility of "all traces of the drug culture."

Many of the complaints stemming from the gathering of pot-users and drug abusers has been roadway blocking. Many of those joining the pot groups blocked driveways, and in some cases, the main road. The roadway is plainly marked with no parking signs. Some even parked alongside such signs.

"We are going to remove lawbreakers from the park," Dodson said. "That should tell those who are determined to take their chances that there is a good chance that they'll be netted in the continuing sweeps."

Control was left to sheriff patrols units in the past but the upsurge of rowdyism, drug use and attendant crimes, including increased burglaries, has attracted the attention of the Narcotics Task Force and the State Drug Enforcement people who are now working in concert with sheriff's deputies under the direction of Capt. Dodson.

"The sweeps are on irregular schedule and we will continue to keep it that way," Dodson said.

Even Worse This Fall

G'mont Plagued With Overcrowded Schools

If elbow room has been precious in the past at the nine high schools in the Grossmont Union High School District, by all indications it will be even more precious this fall.

A report issued by district Superintendent Dr. Leland B. Newcomer to the Grossmont High School Board shows projected enrollment to top 22,000 when school starts in mid September.

Actual 1977 enrollment figures will be released in October.

Newcomer said if the enrollment increases persist, there will be double sessions in more than half the district high schools by 1980.

Last year some 21,044 students enrolled in full-time regular classes in Grossmont District schools.

Enrollment projections developed by Superintendent Newcomer show a 22,517 enrollment for this fall, a projected enrollment of 23,089 by next fall, and an enrollment of 24,256 by fall of 1981.

Emergency Measures

Confronting the Grossmont Trustees earlier this month, Newcomer asked for emergency powers to 1) prepare traditional approaches to the problem of overcrowding, 2) a demographic population survey to be used in a plan to restructure the district, and 3) to establish a task force to study the possibility of putting a bond issue on the ballot within the next four years to finance a new high school.

More Doubles

Newcomer predicted Grossmont High School with an enrollment last year of 2,671, Helix with 2,542 students and Monte Vista with 2,301 could be on double session within the next two years.

"We have a great big problem," said Newcomer. "This fall will be the seventh year on double session for Santana High. I don't think that is fair."

Presently, only two of the district's nine schools, Valhalla and Santana, are on double session. The double session splits the day between freshmen/sophomores who attend from 7 a.m. to noon and juniors-seniors who attend from noon to 5 p.m.

Grossmont High and El Capitan High will expand session to more than the six class periods per day.

Newcomer said a total restructuring of the district was in order yet added many parents would stand in opposition to just such a plan.

"There are a lot of parents who don't want to be inconvenienced with having their children change schools," Newcomer explained. "But they are going to have to have some inconvenience—especially if we have to go to double session."

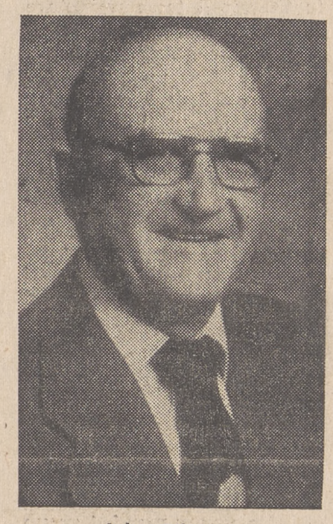
Gibson Resigns Post On Helix Water Board

John B. Gibson, Director of the Helix Water District's Division II for some 18 years, has submitted his resignation effective September 1.

The Gibsons are moving from their home in the Mount Helix area to take new residence in Crest. The move makes him ineligible to continue on the Helix Water Board.



John Gibson

Gibson has served as a director of the San Diego County Water Authority and the San Diego County Flood Control Commission, Zone II.

He served on several local organizations including the El Cajon Chamber of Commerce, of which he is a past president and the La Mesa Kiwanis Club.

The director's seat on the Board of Directors of Helix Water District will be filled at the general election this November.

Nominating petitions must be filed with the Registrar of Voters by September 8.

Board member Bob Rundell, of Division IV, will also stand for reelection this fall.

NEW PRINCIPAL — The new principal of Monterey Heights School is Frank Patrick who takes over from Eldon Meyers. Patrick comes to the Lemon Grove School District from Pomona, California.

In Spot East Gets License

The battle for the $35 entertainment license for Lemon Grove's only top-less go-go bar may be over, at least for a while.

Last Wednesday, the Board of Supervisors gave William McClelland, owner of the In-Spot East, 8290 Broadway, the okay to purchase a new entertainment license.

Sheriff's deputies last April shut down topless dancing at the In Spot alleging some 26 violations of county ordinances.

The bar remained open for the next 65 days selling drinks and sporting a color television instead of dances on stage.

Richard Leuthold, an attorney for owner McClelland told the Board of Supervisors the In Spot East had operated for five years without an incident until the 26 count indictment in April.

Two sheriff's deputies from the vice squad testified the dancers at the In Spot were guilty of "lewd and indecent performances".

After 65 days of suspension, the Board agreed McClelland had a right to purchase a new entertainment license from the county since during the suspension the original license expired.

The In Spot's new license has one stipulation — any more alleged violations would result in immediate revocation.

Legislative Procedure

VOTING. On the passage of every motion, the vote shall be taken by voice or roll call and entered in full upon the record.

Roll Call. Upon demand of any member, made before the negative has been put, the roll call shall be called for yeas and nays upon any question before the council. It shall not be in order for members to explain their vote during the roll call. Any member may change his vote before the next order of business.

Failure to Vote. Every member should vote unless disqualified for cause accepting by vote of the council or by opinion of the city attorney. Self-disqualification, without approval, which results in a tie vote should be avoided as thwarting council action.

Tie votes are "lost" motions, but may be reconsidered later.

RESOLUTIONS. Where the particular resolution has been prepared and is available for presentation:

Procedure is 1) motion, 2) second, 3) discussion, 4) voice vote (i.e., all in favor signify by saying "aye" etc.), 5) result declared. (It is not necessary to read a resolution in full or by title, except to identify it.)

Any member may call for a roll call vote, or demand that the resolution be read in full.

Where the particular resolution has not been prepared:

Procedure is: 1) motion, 2) second, 3) "no objections? —so ordered." 4) process instructing the city attorney to prepare such a resolution for presentation.

This process may be waived in some rush matters and the resolution may be presented verbally in motion form together with instructions for written preparation thereof for later execution. In this event, voting procedure as stated above should be followed after stated.

This short-cut procedure should be avoided except when absolutely necessary; and should be avoided entirely when resolutions are required by law or in improvement acts, zoning matters, and force account work on public projects.

New Seminary to Begin Sept. 12 at Faith Chapel

A long time vision of the leaders of Faith Chapel in La Mesa to take over a four year college became reality recently.

The Reverend George Gregg and Dr. Gary Swenson of Southern California Bible College jointly announced a new four year, state-approved college would begin its fall semester on September 12 at Faith Chapel, 8691 Echo drive, La Mesa.

The decision to conduct day and evening classes at the new campus was made to accommodate the college's growing student body.

"For several years we have wanted to be involved with a Bible School that trains laymen in the Bible or those who want to go into the ministry," said Gregg. "When we least expected it, God put it all together and we are very pleased with this new association."

Southern California Bible College, formerly located in El Cajon, has been in operation for seven years.

The president, Dr. Gene French, also holds the position of Chairman of the Board of Trustees for San Diego Community College. Dr. French supports the philosophy of making education available to everyone by taking the college to the community.

Likewise, one of Southern California Bible College's key objectives is to take Christian education to the churches through extension classes.

Dr. Gary Swenson, vice president, joined Southern California Bible College three years ago and will serve as administrator of the school.

Students attending Southern California Bible College will have an opportunity to take in addition to Bible courses, individual classes in Christian education, counseling, theology, Biblical languages or other Christian ministries.

A 2-year Association of Arts degree and a 4-year Bachelor of Arts degree are offered. The college's schedule is designed to fit both full and part time students, with low tuition rates. The fall semester will end prior to Christmas vacation.

Subjects also offered at the school include such topics as Spiritual Life, theology, Greek, Minor Prophets, Ezekiel, Matthew, Acts, Teaching Methods and many others. Day classes are held from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., Monday through Friday. Night classes begin at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesdays.

To Sing at Windsor Hills

A new gospel singing group called "Sounds Alive", 75 young people from the First Baptist Church of Pomona, California, will be presenting a concert at the Windsor Hills Baptist Church on September 4.

The concert is slated to begin at 7 p.m. in the Windsor Hills Baptist Church, 7385 Orien ave., La Mesa. The church is located behind Helix High School and the phone number there is 463-1201.

Bored and Lonely

Q. Can a marriage that was once happy be happy again through prayer and Scripture readings?

My husband and I were deeply in love two years ago but now he doesn't seem to enjoy my company.

I try not to nag him about his constant running around with his friends, putting them before me, before we came to where we are now.

I'm the type who has no friends since I keeep to myself.

As long as I had his attention I was fine. Now when he leaves me I feel lonely.

I realize I do need outside activities to keep me busy, but in the small town where we live there aren't many activities for young married people.

I love my husband very much, and I need consolation during this crucial time in my second marriage.

A. You need no consolation. On the contrary, you need personality organization and to get outside of yourself.

Undoubtedly this is the reason your husband does not enjoy your company.

To allow yourself to be a loner, you hang on to only him alone. That is too much for anyone to bear.

If there aren't any activities for married young people in your small town, start some yourself.

Get a young married group going and get interested in helping senior citizens. Get into something for the youth of the town.

In five words, get out there and participate.

Participation will help you be an attractive personality. And your husband will again like being with you.

We have a booklet, PACK MEANING INTO YOUR LIFE, which has helped others with questions such as yours, and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone reading this column who wishes a free copy may write for one. Address your request to Dr. and Mrs. Peale, Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Fire

Recently we lost our home and all belonging by fire. We have since lived with some folks who eventually ordered us out on a 9° below zero night.

The shock of that eviction all was nearly too much.

I realize I am an emotional person, scared at almost anything.

Now life is so different; I feel there is nothing left for me.

I am an insominac and cry most of the time.

My husband and I are in our 80's and now live in a mobilehome.

What do you think I should do? Is there a better way?

A. We suggest you talk with your local pastor about your situation. He is no doubt acquainted with local agencies which may be helpful to you.

No 80 year old couple should be allowed to suffer, and we are sure you will find caring people who will help to improve your situation. When proper authorities are made aware of your problem, we are certain.. assistance.. will ..be forthcoming.

Younger Explanation

Answers To Questions On Funeral Expenses

Editor's Note: Evelle J. Younger is the State Attorney General of California. In this report, he answers common questions on the subject of funeral procedures and the effect of current California Law.

Q. What are the legal requirements, if any, as to the type of funeral a person has to have?

A. In California you may select anything from what is referred to as a full-service funeral — that is: a service that includes embalming, an open view casket and the ground burial — to a simple cremation and disposal of the ashes.

Q. If a person decides to be cremated is it necessary that a casket be purchased?

A. No. If a body is to be cremated a casket is not necessary. However, if there will be a public viewing of the body prior to cremation the use of some kind of container would be advisable. A very simple and inexpensive container could be used.

Q. Can a person who's making funeral arrangements ask the funeral director for a range of prices of caskets offered for sale?

A. Most funeral homes have showrooms in which the caskets for sale are on display. And under the law a funeral director, on request, has to provide you a statement which gives you the price range for all the caskets offered for sale.

J. What about embalming? Does California law require that a body be embalmed?

A. There is no state law that requires a body be embalmed and — if a body is to be cremated and is not going to be viewed — there is obviously no reason to have it embalmed. But if the body is to be shipped, or if it is to be publicly viewed, embalming would preserve its condition and would be advisable.

Q. Are there any specific requirements imposed upon the funeral director with regard to the costs of a funeral?

A. Yes. The law requires that the person making the funeral arrangements be provided with a complete list of the charges for the professional services provided. This includes the cost of preparing the body, the casket, the clothing, the transportation, the flowers, the cemetery or crematory charges, the newspaper notices, the clergyman's honorarium, and any music that is to be part of the service.

Q. Is it possible to take care of your own funeral arrangements; or, for that matter, the funeral arrangements of someone close to you before he or she dies?

A. There are two ways of paying for a funeral: (1) at the time of death — called an "at-need arrangement;" or (2) prior to death — called a "pre-need funeral arrangement."

This latter way of paying for a funeral — arranging for it prior to the need — avoids the sometimes costly choices made by you or your loved ones under the emotional strain and stress of a family death. You should shop for funeral services as you would any other important purchase. Waiting for the last minute can be expensive.

Q. If I make prior arrangements for a funeral, am I bound by law to go ahead with those specific arrangements?

A. Most pre-need funeral arrangements are paid for in monthly installments. The law requires that all money received under this arrangement be placed in a trust fund within 30 days of receipt. And either the funeral director or yourself, or your legally appointed representative, may cancel the arrangements at any time prior to the actual furnishing of the services.

You can revoke the trust at any time and under California law it has to be honored by the funeral director within 15 days of recipt of the revocation notice.

Q. Will I get all my money back?

A. You'll receive all the money you paid to the funeral director together with 5% interest on the money that the funeral director is required to credit your account.

There is only a slight revocation fee involved should you decide to change your mind. It cannot exceed 10% of the total in your account, and it is chargeable against the earned income only.

If, for whatever reason, a funeral director is unable to provide the services arranged for, no revocation fee can be charged.

Shopping for funeral services before you need them will help you or your family avoid what could be expensive emotional decisions.

Trends in Contemporary Art Featured in Video Tape Series

The Contemporary Arts Committee of the San Diego Fine Arts Gallery has put together a series of four video tape presentations on art in contemporary society.

Beginning September 20, the programs report recent developments in the arts and their applications to business and cultural activity.

The first in the series of programs to be presented at the Fine Arts Gallery will be a report on commercial art.

Titled: "Plop-Plop-Fizz-Fizz and other Masterpieces", the film goes behind the scenes of a $100,000 Faberge commercial, includes an interview with a seven year old television salesman, and reports the development of McDonaldland in Los Angeles.

Program number two, scheduled for October 4, is titled: "Shutter or Shudder?" and is a study of contemporary photography.

Also included in the presentation is the Director of the San Diego Center for Photographic Art, Larry Urrutia's f-stopping discussion on trends of photographic art in San Diego.

Program three set for October 18 is titled: "The Fine Art of Propaganda". Discussed is the relationship between art and power and how political regimes have used art to influence people.

Program four is entilted "Monuments" and entails a discussion of the origins of statues.

Ticket prices are $1.50 for Fine Arts Gallery members and students with valid ID's, $2 for non-members.

Also sold will be series tickets, $5 for members and $9 for non-members.

All programs begin at 7:30 p.m. in the James S. Copley auditorium. There will be no advance sales of tickets.

Nurse Recruiter Named for Sharp

Mary Ann Neis, R.N., has been named Nurse Recruiter for Sharp Hospital, said Nancy Efurd, Nursing Administrator.

"Currently, there is a shortage of qualified personnel throughout the San Diego area," Neis said. "We think the key word here is "qualified,' because there is an abundance of nurses in the area, but we need those who have specialized skills."

While San Diego attracts numerous nursing personnel and Sharp Hospital has a great number of them applying, Neis makes the point that "nursing is getting very sophisticated.

"At Sharp Hospital, the Nursing Administration is leaving the idea of team nursing — where one nurse gives all medication, another nurse does all treatments, etc.—and is going into 'primary nursing' where there is a tremendous challenge for the nurse to be creative, to create a nursing-care plan that is individualized to the particular patient's needs."

What You Should Know

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

Wrinkles

Many persons are distressed as they recognize that ,with the passage of time, their faces are marred by the appearance of wrinkles.

This is virtually inescapable since the skin loses its natural elasticity as part of the aging process.

But these same people are often lured into buying expensive creams or lotions because of misleading information that cosmetic preparations will peel wrinkles from the skin.

The process of peeling can indeed remove fine facial wrinkles, but it cannot be achieved by the application of cosmetics.

It is a medical procedure which must be carried out by a trained dermatologist or plastic surgeon. It is accomplished by the application of a special chemical solution and can be done either as an open peel or a closed (or taped) peel.

The open peel, which has been used by dermatologists for more than 50 years, is usually done in the physician's office.

The patient may be given sedation and some pain medication, and the chemical substance is applied.

When the procedure is completed, the patient leaves the office with a reddened face—similar to a pronounced sunburn. A crust forms over the treated area, and this usually comes off within 5 to 7 days.

During this healing period, some doctors recommend cold compresses and others prescribe an antibiotic salve. When the healing process is complete, the patient has a pink, more youthful looking skin.

The closed peel, a relatively new development, often requires the patient to be hospitalized for a brief period.

The patient is sedated and given medication to alleviate pain and the chemical is then applied. Some doctors do this in small segments and others cover the entire face in one application.

The face is then covered by a tape mask. This is kept on for 48 hours, a period during which marked swelling may occur. Many patients report that this is a period of severe physical discomfort.

After the mask is removed many doctors apply a powder to the face to promote the formation of a crust. A few days later an ointment may be applied to soften the crust so that within a few days it can be removed.

Other doctors permit the skin to heal, as it would in the case of a burn, without using either a crust-forming powder or an ointment.

The patient who has had a closed peel is left with a reddish-pink skin which usually fades over a 6-8 week period. By the seventh or eighth day the face can be washed, and after two weeks makup is permitted.

Generally speaking, the open peel does not produce as much cosmetic benefit as the closed peel. On the other hand, there is rarely the need for hospitalization, the amount of pain is considerably less and the healing takes place faster.

There are some risks in both peels — that there will be permanent scarring and, particularly in the case of dark-skinned persons, some problems of pigmentation.

Neither the open nor the closed peel is a miraculous rejuvenator, nor do their effects last forever. But to many people they are a reassuring way to postpone the damage which the years have done to their facial skin.

The judgment about whether you should or should not have a peel ought to be made jointly with your physician.

Ask for his recommendation about whether an open or a closed peel is more suitable for your situation.

Above all, be certain you are in the hands of a qualified physician who has had special training and experience in this procedure. Your family doctor or local county medical society can refer you to specialists in this field.

CHAMPS IN THEIR CLASS — Linda Johnson of Lemon Grove, better known in off-road racing as wife of former Mint 400 and Baja 1000 winner Johnny Johnson, has a title of her own. With co-driver Jackie Thomison of Bowie Ariz., she recently won her class championship in the SCORE Baja Internacional. The two attractive ladies are entered in Goodrich's SCORE Off-Road World Championship this weekend at Riverside International Raceway.

Off-Road Crown Prize at Riverside

The glamour boys of BF Goodrich's SCORE Off-Road World Championships Saturday and Sunday at Riverside International Raceway are the dune buggy drivers, who fly and jump their graceful, spider-like rigs in almost ballet-like precision over the rutted, bumpy, hilly course.

But there are lots of fans who would just as soon they'd clear away the bugs and get to the truck race.

That's when they'll be able to see those 5,000-lb. behemoths crunch and crash around the two miles of torture with the subtlety of so many pile-drivers.

Pickup truck racing at Riverside will be presided over by master trucker Walker Evans, of Riverside, who got to be so good at one point in his career that SCORE International officials made him race his truck with the dune buggies.

Evans racing against 1,400-lb. two-seat buggies provided one of the memorable moments of the 1976 World Championships. On the first lap, as six cars piled up and blocked the track in front of him, Evans had nowhere to go but over the top.

So this year he's back with the truckers, racing his own Ford pickup in a race for both two-wheel-drive and four-wheel-drive utility vehicles. Although Evans is accorded the favorite's role, nobody is going to mail him the first place trophy in advance.

Among the tough competitors Evans will have to beat are Frank (Scoop) Vessels, the Los Alamitos Race Track owner, in his Goodrich-sponsored Ford F-100, and magazine publisher Stan Gilbert of Cypress in his Ford F-250. Dodge's factory entrant, John Baker of Burbank, could also figure in the outcome.

Racing in the same event on Sunday, with the two-wheel-drive utility vehicles are an even heavier type of off-road racing machinery — the four-wheel-drive-wheels, divided into production and modified classes.

It's in the production four-wheel-drive class where factories have been clashing all season, in Baja, on the California, Arizona and Nevada deserts. SCORE's 1976 "man of the year," Sherman Balch of Fremont, will race his factory-backed International Harvester Scout against wily veteran J. M. Bragg of Visalia, front runners of the Jeep contingent, and the glamour boy of the class, Rod Hall of Reno, in the factory Dodge.

In major races this year Bragg won the Mint 400 and Hall both the SCORE Parker 400 and Baja International.

Another truck class, one for imported so-called "mini-pick-ups," will renew Riverside fans' acquainted with one of the great names in motor racing, Herschel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore. McGriff will team with J. L. Henderson of Marinua del Rey in a Datsun pickup, facing off against such formidable drivers as Jim Conner of El Cajon (Datsun) and Dick Landfield of Yorka Linda (Ford Courier).

Trucks provide much of the variety to the 11-race program staged over the two-day weekend, but there is also racing for motorcycles, Baja Bugs and passenger cars, including showroom stock VW sedans.

For RV enthusiasts who will take advantage of free overnight parking Friday and Saturday the price of a weekend ticket admitting a spectator to Friday qualifying plus both days of racing is $10.

Aztec Night Scrimmage Friday at S'Western

The second evening scrimmage of the week for the football Aztecs of S.D. State U. will be Friday at Southwestern College in Chula Vista at 7 o'clock.

Last night the team held a 7 p.m. scrimmage at Aztec Bowl. The scrimmages are open to the public.

The Aztecs opened drills last week with 75 players, which includes 26 lettermen, 29 junior college transfers, 10 high school recruits and 10 redshirts.

Two top new players were in the group of 75 and both could help this season. The best player is offensive tackle Kevin Fidel (6-3½, 257) from Santa Monica City College where he was a 2nd team JC All-America and the Most Valuable Player in the Southern California Conference. Fidel enters San Diego State as a sophomore. The other newcomer is running back Tim Brown from Cleveland High School in Reseda. Brown was 1st team All-Los Angeles City, Player of the Year in the West Valley League and started in the North-South Shrine Game.

The Aztecs will hold two-a-day workouts in pads Tuesday and Thursday at 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m., have a single practice at 9 a.m. Saturday, take Sunday off and practice at 3 p.m. August 29 and 30.

Breakers Move To Sports Arena

To accommodate the move, some schedule changes have been made.

The corrected schedule released this week is:

Sunday, Tucson

Tuesday, Phoenix

Thursday, September 1, Santa Barbara

A game with Orange County will be schedule for September 2 or 4 depending on what arrangements can be made at the Arena.

An away game will be at Santa Barbara August 31.

The Arena matches will start at 8 p.m. The season's matches at Golden Hall were at 7:30.

The Difference

Alligators have a broader head than crocodiles.

Pirates Here Friday

Padres Home for Eleven Games

The pennant-hopeful Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League's Eastern Division will provide the opposition for the San Diego Padres as the club kicks off an 11-game homestand Friday.

The homestand, the longest for the Padres (21 of their next 26 games) since before the annual All-Star break, will feature San Diego's final 1977 appearances against opponents from the Eastern Division.

Pittsburgh, challenging for the Eastern title along with defending kingpin Philadelphia as well as St. Louis and Chicago, will take on the Padres in three single affairs, Friday through Sunday. Game times are set for 7 p.m. the first two dates and then 1 p.m. for the Sunday finale.

Following the Bucs to town will be the St. Louis Cardinals and base-stealing king Lou Brock. The Padres and Redbirds have three 7 p.m. clashes slated for San Diego Stdaium on Monday through Wednesday. Brock went into the final two weeks of August needing just six more stolen bases to surpass Ty Cobb and take over as baseball's all-time leading base stealer so Padre fans will either be seeing the new record-holder or they might be in line to actually see the historic record-breaker.

Looking Ahead

Taking a look further into the homestand, the Padres will be idle on Thursday, September 1 (the club's third open Thursday in a row) and then meet the Chicago Cubs over the weekend from September 2-4. The entire homestand will conclude with Monday, Tuesday, September 5-6 games agaisnt the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Padres will actually be playing 14 games in a row with members of the National League's Eastern Division before testing the Dodgers in early September and that will bring the curtain down for good on the East for the season.

"All of these games will be doubly important," says Padres skipper Alvin Dark. "On the one hand, each of the clubs we will be facing are fighting for either the Eastern or Western Division titles so they will be playing to the hilt. On the other hand, we are still in the running for a third place finish in the West so we cannot afford to let too many games slip away from us."

McIntyre Still Shy Of 5th Championship As Races Narrow to 5

The men drivers at Cajon Speedway have found out that Pat McIntyre of Spring Valley can be beaten on the 3/8 mile paved oval.

Now all that remains is for the women to prove that defending champion Barbara Baxter of El Cajon can be stopped.

The women will be out to stop Mrs. Baxter Saturday night on the Gillespie Field track as they join forces with the men to provide another nine event show on the popular track.

Mrs. Baxter has won all but one of the 10-lap powder puff races this season and will once again be the lady to beat.

The wife of super stock driver Bob Baxter has virtually wrapped up her second title in as many years, but the likes of Holly Stahl, Sue Lyon, Mac Huntington, and Joan Sanchez will be trying to keep Barbara out of victory lane.

Holly Stahl is the only other driver to win this year, with her victory coming back on April 23.

In the regular men's division, only five point races remain on the 1977 calendar and Pat McIntyre will be trying to wrap up his fifth title in six years when the action gets underway at 8 Saturday night. He leads the pack by nearly 1,000 points.

The men will do battle in a 40-lap main event to highlight the evening after running their regular card, which includes a 4-lap trophy dash, four 8-lap heat races, a 10-lap consolation, and a 20-lap semi.

Last week McIntyre, who was gunning for his fifth straight win at the track finished second behind 22-year old Ron Esau. But a good showing this week could wrap it all up. McIntyre needs only to outpoint Mik Hagerman by five points this week end to claim the title.

Agajanian's Sprinter Makes Debut Saturday

GARDENA — The "Gardena Used Food Special," a 390 cubic inch Chevy sprinter owned by J. C. Agajanian and built this summer by Grant King, will make its debut on Gardena night in the CRA program at Agajanian's own Ascot Park Saturday at 8 p.m.

Agajanian, dean of Indianapolis-500 car owners, is returning to the sprint ranks as an owner for the first time in a quarter century. King, the builder, is his Indy-car partner and designer of the car in which Sheldon Kinser is threatening to win this year's United States Auto Club sprint-car championship.

Carrying the number, "98 Jr.," the one Agajanian used after his Indy cars acquired "98", the "Used Food Special" gets his name from Agajanian's other career.

"Years ago, a columnist asked me what I did for a living besides race cars. I told him I was in the "Used Food" business. At that time my father and I owned a hog ranch, and we were able to refine garbage and feed it to the hogs," the Stetson-hatted impresario smiled.

"My Municipal Service Company still has the contract in the city of Gardena for refuse removal. There are too many glass and tin containers nowadays to make it profitable to feed hogs, but we still haul 'used food'."

Three-Year-Old Fillies Readied In Del Mar Oaks

With the summer's championship as the prize, the West's outstanding three-year-old fillies will battle Sunday in the 21st running of the $40,000-added Del Mar Oaks, mile and one-eighth grass course event which will climax the racing week at the seaside oval.

Also featured during the period will be the $25,000-added Sorrento Stakes for two-year-old fillies at one mile Wednesday at the $30,000-added San Diego Handicap for older horses at a mile and one-sixteenth Saturday.

Considering the abundance of talent in the three-year-old filly division, the 1977 renewal of the Del Mar Oaks promises to be among the most exciting in the race's history.

Primed for the test are Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Stollery's Glenaris, victress in the Hollywood Oaks; Montgomery R. Fisher's unbeaten Giggling Girl, three-for-three in a brief but notable career; Elmendorf's Drama Critic a two-time winner this season; Ann and V. D. Eachus' classy stakes-winner Taisez Vous and Fitzsimon's and Maytag's Teisen Lap, successful in the San Clemente Stakes.

Saturday's San Diego Handicap will feature a return match among many of the speedsters who contested the '76 running of the middle distance affair, including Mark's Place, Good Report, and Austin Mittler.

Midget Racers Return to SB

The action should be hot and heavy at South Bay Park Speedway 117 Friday night, when the midget autos come back to share a program on the dirt quarter-mile oval with the super stocks.

Time trials get underway at 7 p.m. and the first race is set to start at 8:30. Two features head the fast-moving program — a 20-lapper for the stocks and a 30-lapper for the midgets.

The midget drivers of the U. S. Racing Club will be chasing current points leader Danny McKnight of Alta Loma. Yet, McKnight has failed to win in the two previous South Bay starts with the RIMCO Miller VW.

Two-time champion Roy Cook Jr. of Redlands won the June 17 race with Mike Wilson's VW-powered machine and Dave Culp of Phoenix surprised the regulars with a victory on July 29.

McKnight had a second and third to show for his efforts.

Meanwhile, fast-charging Ken Snelling of Bonita, Don Hicks of National City, Spring Valley's John Cartwright and Jim Pavlick figure to scramble for the super stock feature honors.

Track president Don Basile said that there should be many more super entrants because some of the street stockers which meet the specs can enter the big doubleheader program.

Hydro Races Add 'Rafting'

An Overnight Rafting Party has been added to the Jack in the Box Thunderboats Unlimited and it promises to be the most exciting boat party ever held in S.D. Bay.

It will afford Rafters an overnight gathering place for the Thunderboats which will be running Thursday, September 15 through Sunday, September 18 as well as giving them a grandstand view of the races. The event is comparable to the Log Boom in Seattle.

Rafters will bring in their boats on Saturday morning and remain until after the Thunderboat finals.

Band concerts, ski and jet ski races, media personalities, Navy UDT and SEAL teams will hold the interest of viewers Saturday.

Saturday night Rafter will participate in a Jack in the Box Beach Party. A picnic dinner of hot dogs, baked beans, salads, corn on the cob and soft drinks will be served for $1.50. Dancing will follow.

Shuttle service will be provided for the Rafter to Vacation Village where much of the action will take place.

Reservations are required by calling Race HQ at 239-0143. A sell-out is anticipated. The only boats to be permitted in the closed area during race days are patrol boats, race boats and Rafters boats displaying the official Overnight Rafting flag.

Race HQ is at 2930 Marcy ave.

TAKE FIVE

by John E. Wirges

Winning is getting a good workout at San Diego stadium in this, its 10th year of hosting crowds.

The Padres come back tomorrow, after an interesting romp through the Eastern Division and play host to Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Chicago and the Los Angeles Dodgers in an 11 game, 13 date home stand.

And the Chargers, who celebrated the Mission Valley Sports Palace 10th birthday last week by drubbing the New York Football Giants, (as TVcaster Howard whats-his-name is wont to say) are playing home games with the promise of spring.

Tommy Prothro's troops triumphed over San Francisco earlier this month before the home crowd to give Gene Klein's crew a 2-1 pre-season record and a perfect mark on the home grounds.

Trouble is, as the Padres open their long home stand, the Chargers head off into foreign fields and take on a couple of Super Bowl contenders in arch rival Oakland and up start Los Angeles.

Oakland is tough anywhere, but in Oakland they are a menace. The Chargers haven't whipped the Oaklands since before there was major league baseball in San Diego.

A Sid Gilman (remember him) crew turned the trick last against Oakland up in the Bay town on October 13, 1968. John Hadl hit Lance Alworth with nine passes for 182 yards and Gene oster picked his way for 104 yards on the ground to upset the Oaklands 23-14 and bust a 14 game winning streak and their first defeat at home in three years.

Of course the Raiders didn't forget or forgive Gilman's group and dumped the Chargers when they played them in San Diego Stadium later in the season.

A quick recheck of the dates and you soon realize the Chargers have never defeated Oakland in San Diego Stadium. Not ever-never.

The Chargers' best effort was a 27-all tie in '70 at the Stadium and a 17-all tie up in Bay country in '72.

Klein's Corps has hung close most of the time, but Charger fans have never been able to smell Raider hide burning with defeat.

Perhaps that is why Prothro has John Madden's mob on the hook for three clashes this campaign.

He'll feel them out this exhibition season with a "don't show-too-much-but-play-like-hell game plan Saturday night deep in enemy territory. The proceedings will be offered in full color from Tijuana via XETV, Channel six, beginning at 6 p.m. with Tom Kelly and Dave Levy doing the word work.

John DeMott and Jerry Gross will paint the word picture over KSDO Radio complete with little tales and colorful trivia. Maybe they'll even describe some of the action. That would be a nice change.

The next two affairs are in the regular grind of the season. Tommy's horde opens the campaign against the Raiders in Oakland on Sept. 18th and then plays host to John Madden Marauders November 20 for a chance to log a San Diego Stadium anniversary defeat over these Bay area buccaneers.

Those are the dreams that keep fan and soul together and the promise is greater this year than in the 10 years of Stadium history.

In the sweet hours of anticipation of Charger victory over Madden's monsters on Saturday, let us not forget the stirrings of development among the Chargers' cotenants in San Diego Stadium.

The Padres started to crawl with five rookies this spring and, while the growing pains have been exasperating at times, the experiment has been successful and the full bloom of promise is on the field.

The Padres host the All-Star game next year, and with the way they're coming along, they could host the World Series the year after.

G'mont Overcrowding (Con't)

Newcomer believes the heart of the problem is the voters' unwillingness to pass school bond referendums which would build a new school in the Grossmont District.

Last year on June 8, the voters in the district defeated by a 69.6% margin a plan to build a new $14 million high school at Old Camp Elliott, north of Santee. Also defeated on the ballot was a plan to expand Valhalla High, built in 1974-75, to handle some 2,500 students.

The new high school at Camp Elliott would have cost district tax payers 21 cents more and the Valhalla High School expansion would have added four cents to the tax bill.

A new district school has been estimated to cost around $15 million and may end up to be the only solution to the overcrowding.

"I think we've got to lay it on the line and tell the community; 'Look, we need a new school'," said Grossmont trustee Ken Overstreet in a recent interview.

Overstreet said for every month voters delay the building of a new school the price tag jumps $24,000.

The only other solution open to the Grossmont district would be to adopt a "college type" schedule where students are responsible for their own scheduling of classes held from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Newcomer said police, school officials, and many parents he has queried reject this due to the lack of supervision for high school students.

Toreros Open '77 Grid Camp

Training camp for the 1977 USD Football season is underway at the Alcala Park campus. 65 players reported this week for the opening of fall drills, including 22 lettermen. The Toreros open the 1977 season on September 10 at Cal Lutheran College.

Some of the top returning players on offense are: quarterback—Andy Slimak, running back—Steve Goodbody, tight end—Tim Howard, and receivers—Pat Iaccino and Bruce Jans.

Andy Slimak, (6'3", 190), senior, threw for 1,194 yards in 1976. In his career at USD he has completed 102 of 202 (a .505 completion percentage) for 1,378 yards and 6 touchdowns.

Andy was one of only two college division players to be selected Southern California's Player of the Week; for his performance against USIU in which he threw for 350 yards. He also set the USD record for the longest completed pass that covered 93 yards against Cal State Northridge.

Steve Goodbody, (5'9", 169), senior, who will be playing his fourth year of football for the Toreros has led USD in rushing twice in his career in both 1974 and 1976 (he played corner back in 1975). To date Steve has rushed for 774 yards on 220 carries which is 3.5 average. His longest run was for 40 yards and he has scored four touchdowns. He has also caught 18 passes for 164 yards a 9.1 average.

Bonus Night Played for SD Coliseum

It'll be Bonus Night at the Coliseum where professional wrestling is held every Tuesday.

The bonus is an extra bout plus three features. There'll be six bouts in all headed by the bout in which Big Bad John and Chavo Guererro are locked in a 7-foot high steel cage. The winner is the guy who can get out.

In the semi-main Mando Guererro is putting up $1,000 to prove he can beat Victor Gordman. If Mando wins, Victor will remove his mask for the first time. Gordman will add the $1,000 to his purse if he wins.

The third of the trio of events will be a no-limit battle with the loser leaving town between Bill Ash and Barry O. Several wrestlers have departed these parts in the past few months via the "loser leave" ploy.

Victor Rivera tackles Texas Reed after which Crusher Brooks tangles with Johnny Lusk.

Superbowl Champs XI Host Chargers Saturday

—The Oakland Raiders, champions of Super Bowl XI.

—A team that has posted a record of 90 victories, 23 losses, and 3 ties since the Coliseum was built in 1966.

The Raiders' record breaks down to 19-10 in the preseason, 62-11-3 in the regular season, and 9-2 in the postseason.

Kickoff for this fourth preseason game of 1977 is 6 p.m. The radio portion of game coverage begins with Pat Curran's NFL Weekend at 3:50, followed by Chargers Talk at 4, and the Tommy Prothro Show at 5:35. Charger Talk resumes following Locker-room Report after the game. Television coverage will begin on Channel 6 at 6 p.m.

The Chargers last played Oakland in a preseason game on August 5, 1967; the Raiders winning 24-23. San Diego comes into the game with a 2-1 preseason record, having won its second straight game at home, 29-17 over the New York Giants last week on the tenth anniversary of San Diego Stadium.

Don Goode's Touchdown

The contest was featured by a postgame fireworks display that detonated prematurely. Linebacker Don Goode intercepted a pass by Giants quarterback Jerry Golsteyn on the last play from scrimmage and ran 34 yards for the first touchdown of his life.

Goode was bushed when he got to the end zone. "I had a bear on my back and two cubs on my legs," he explained.

The Chargers never have played a defending Super Bowl shampion in a preseason game. They have played seven games against defending Superbowl champions in the regular season.

Their record includes victories by 34-27 over the New York Jets in 1969 and 31-13 over the Kansas City Chiefs in 1970. They lost to Kansas City 26-14 in 1970, to Dallas 34-28 in 1972, to Miami 28-21 in 1974, to Pittburgh 37-0 in 1975, and to Pittsburgh 23-0 in 1976.

Rodgers 68-yarder

The Chargers scored on Johnny Rodgers's 68-yard punt return with 2:08 left in the fourth quarter at Dallas in their first game; they scored on Artie Owens seven-yard run with 12 seconds left against San Francisco in their second game; they scored on Don Goode's 34-yard interception return as the gun went off at the end of their game against the New York Giants.

The Chargers had 60 players on their roster this morning. They will cut to 52 by 1 p.m. Tuesday in accordance with NFL rules. NFL teams may enter the regular season with 43 active players and 2 inactive players. That determination must be made by 1 p.m. September 12.

Renato Garcie Eyes 10th Win at Coliseum

Renato Garcia, the middleweight champion of Chile, is coming back to the S.D. Coliseum Friday — and he is glad.

His reasoning has logic. He's seeking his 10th straight victory at the San Diego House of Swat.

Renato's brother, Mario, with a 4-0 record is scheduled in a 6 rounder against middleweight Teddy Saunders in the undercard.

The third middleweight scrap will be a 4-rounder between Bert Lee and Joel Carranza. Lee is a popular local fighter with good capabilities. Carranza is from L.A.

A 4th bout was still in the making at press time.

The gong rigs at 8:15 Friday.

Last Week

There was some controversy surrounding the state heavyweight title fight Friday night between Howard "K.O." Smith, the title-holder who was not holding it temporarily.

The State Athletic Commission, which concerns itself only with boxing, claimed Smith didn't defend his title during the year since winning it. Smith retorted by explaining that he couldn't defend the title if no one challenged him. Apparently, no one did.

And so it was when K.O. Smith faced "Sweet" Charley James Friday night in a 12-round "title" bout at the Coliseum in San Diego. It was mostly "waltz time" for 9 rounds. In the 10th round Smith knocked Charley through the ropes in a bout scheduled for 12. Charley appealed to ring doctor William Lundeen that his shoulder was injured by the fall and that he couldn't continue. Smith, ahead in 7 of the 9 previous rounds, had regained his title —if indeed it had actually been lost.

Norton's Power

But there were other bouts. Ken Norton, today's world ranking heavyweight sparred 3 rounds with Eddie "Bossman" Jones and in the process, knocked Bossman's headgear off. It was a show of great power.

In other scraps David Portillo won a unamious decision from Guillermo Gonzalez in a 5-round lightweight encounter. Gonzales, of Santa Monica, was described by one ring authority as an "agony" fighter. He works hard but his ability doesn't match his determination.

A new face on the local scene was that of Eli Smith of L.A. who KO's Frank Battaglia, also of LA at 2:39 of the last round of a 6-round light-heavy bout. Smith, whose face is scarred from an encounter with car thieves, appears to be an angry, hungry fighter. It was his first pro fight after 4 months of training, so he says.

Chacon Sponsors Aug. 27 Seminar On Property Taxes

A seminar on property taxes is scheduled for Saturday, is being sponsored by the 79th Assembly District Citizens' Advisory Council and Assembly (79th District) Pete Chacon.

The meeting will be at the S.D. City College theatre at 15th and C sts. in downtown San Diego.

The seminar, which starts at 9:30 and closes at noon, is free. It will feature speakers from key legislative tax committees in Sacramento, representatives from the County Tax Assessor's office and several groups actively involved in property tax matters such as the Taxpayer's Association, Legal Aid Society, and senior citizen associations.

"Daily, my office receives many calls from citizens throughout my district asking for information on how the property tax rate was established for their home or business," said Assemblyman Chacon.

"Many especially senior citizens and families on low and moderate incomes are extremely concerned over the fact that their property taxes have skyrocketed often times, well over 60 per cent. For this reason, in order to provide taxpayers an opportunity to hear firsthand from the experts on all aspects of property taxes, the Citizens' Advisory Council and I decided to host this important seminar. Additionally, comments and suggestions generated at the workshop will assist me in reviewing several key tax measures presently being considered in Sacramento," Chacon said.

The public is encouraged to attend the Property Tax Seminar.

Tax, Rent Claims Due Wednesday

Senior citizens eligible for property tax and rent assistance under liberalized state legislation have only until Wednesday to file claims with California's Franchise Tax Board.

The property tax and rent assistance program, designed to aid elderly homeowners and renters through a refund of a portion of property taxes paid or assumed included in their rents, has been extended this year to include renters 62 or older whose total household income does not exceed $5,000 per year.

The amended legislation also encompasses homeowners over 62 as of January 1, 1977 whose total household income is not more than $12,000.

"Senior citizens uncertain as to their eligibility under the property tax and rent assistance program should immediately contact any local office of the California Franchise Tax Board", said Kirk West of the California Taxpayer's Association. "While the necessary forms may be obtained by mail, the August 31st deadline crunch makes direct contact with a local office advisable."

Last year, more than $52 million were paid on more than 293,000 claims made by eligible senior citizens.

Letters To The Editor

Info Aid Asked

Dear Editor:

This fall, we in the Veterans Administration anticipate that more than 20,000 veterans will be receiving education or training under the GI Bill in San Diego County. Many of these same veterans are now living in the area served by the LEMON GROVE REVIEW and SPRING VALLEY BULLETIN.

We need your help in communicating an important message to these veterans.

The vast majority of the 5.5 million Vietnam Era veterans who have already trained under the GI Bill have done so in an exemplary fashion that will benefit the nation for years to come. Unfortunately, there have been exceptions, enough to create a real education overpayment problem for the VA.

To help overcome this problem, Congress has enacted legislation to change the way the VA pays GI Bill allowances. Particularly notable is the revision in advance pay procedures.

Last fall, for example, when veterans registered for school, they received an automatic advance payment covering approximately the first six weeks of school, and subsequent monthly checks were prepaid at the start of each monthly training period.

This year, only those students who apply 30 days before registration will receive advance payments, and monthly checks will come after each month of training has been completed.

Students will receive the same dollar amount as before, and possibly even more, since Congress is considering the Administrator's recommended cost-of-living increase in GI Bill allowances. However, the timing of the payments will be different, and veteran students should plan the personal finances accordingly.

Two other possibilities may be of interest to your readers. To smooth the transition to the new payment procedure, we are emphasizing other forms of VA assistance that are available to students. Among these are VA loans for education, interest-free until nine months after the veteran leaves school.

A work-study program is also available for full time students, whereby the VA will pay an additional $625 each semester. The first $250 will be paid in advance.

Your readers can obtain more details on pay changes and other VA assistance programs by contracting the campus veterans affairs counselors in your area, or by calling the VA in San Diego at 297-8220, or toll-free at 1-800-532-3811.

The assistance rendered by you in the past is sincerely appreciated, and I would be grateful if you would publish this message as a public service to the many veterans among LEMON GROVE REVIEW and SPRING VALLEY BULLETIN readers.

Sincerely yours,

Seniors' Problems Is Craven's Concern

Dear Editor:

Problems of older Californians constantly come to my attention through mail, by telephone or in my meetings with equally concerned people both here in Sacramento and in my district.

Despite a lot of effort, resolving these problems continues to fall short of real needs.

Limited incomes just can't stretch to meet the skyrocketing costs of housing, food and health care.

But same help is available and I want to make certain that everyone who can qualify is made aware of its availability.

So, I am urging all readers of this letter to help spread the word about a new law and changes in another which offer help to those homeowners and renters who need it most.

Because of a change in the Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Law, more homeowners (up to 300,000) will qualify for tax refunds than ever before.

An elderly homeowner may now have up to $12,000 in household income and still qualify for assistance. The old level was $10,000.

The property tax refunds range from a minimum of four percent to a maximum of 96 percent on the first $8500 of assessed valuation, increased from $7500 last year.

Since the assessed value usually works out to about one-fourth of actual market value, the assistance amounts to a refund on nearly the first $34,000 of the home's actual worth. I have estimates that the average refund will be about $236.

New Law

For the first time this year, elderly renters will get help, too. A new law supported by my Republican colleagues and me was passed last year to give rent refunds to people 62 and older whose household income is less than $5,000. The average refund will be about $100.

My concern now is that many older Californians may not be aware of the homeowner and renter programs. And time is quickly running out. The deadline for filing for assistance this year is August 31.

I am urging readers to pass this information along to their neighbors and friends whom they believe might be eligible. Senior citizens can call or visit the Franchise Tax Board office tt 1350 Front st., Room 2068 in San Diego. They may also write Senior Citizens Programs, Post Office Box 1588, Sacramento, CA 95807.

One of every 11 Americans 65 or older now live in California. I firmly believe they form an important part of our state's fabric — especially when you realize they have spent a lifetime making a significant contribution to our communities.

So it's important that we each do our part to inform older people about available benefits which will lift burdens and lend more dignity to their daily lives.

SDG&E Rate Increases Said Short of Goal

SDG&E has petitioned the California Public Utilities Commission for reconsideration and rehearing of a recently approved rate relief decision.

SDG&E claims that under the rate relief it will not have enough income to issue all the necessary bonds in 1978 for that year's construction program. Without bonds the company cannot meet the rapidly expanding service area population and maintain its service level, it was said.

Buses to Serve Grossmont Again

Continued public transportation to Grossmont College has been assured by recent action of the city governments of La Mesa and El Cajon, and the County Board of Supervisors.

The three governmental agencies contribute to underwriting the expense of Route 54 in the San Diego Transit System according to the mileage covered by Route 54 within their jurisdiction.

Route 54 serves the public by providing north-south transportation between Lemon Grove, Spring Valley, Rancho San Diego, and Santee.

This route visits the college campus twice each hour interconnecting at convenient points with all segments of the S.D. Transit System. College officials have expressed their satisfaction with the current service, which has been steadily increasing in ridership since its start in the Fall of 1975. Regular fare is 35 cents. Hundreds of students using the route during the past two years have purchased a student Saverpass for $10 a month.

Moto Safety Seminar Booked In San Diego

A statewide motorcycle safety seminar will be conducted by the California Office of Traffic Safety and other public and private organizations in San Diego on October 26-27, according to Tom Lankard, chief of the safety office. Exact locations will be announced.

The public sessions are open to all persons interested in being involved in helping to reduce motorcycle highway accidents, injuries and deaths. Motorcycle highway deaths are running 10 per cent higher so far this year than in 1976. Last year there were 20,782 motorcycle accidents in California in which 606 motorcyclists were killed.

With the increasing popularity of motorcycles as a means of basic transportation, even more deaths and injuries are expected unless effective new safety programs are developed.

National and state experts in on-the-road motorcycle safety will head specialized working panels. Opportunity will be provided for all participants to explain their own ideas, problems and programs.

The two-day meeting will probe the areas of education and driver licensing, rider and vehicle safety equipment, and roadway and vehicle engineering. Discussion sessions will address these areas from several points of view, including legislation, public information and education, and statewide coordination of safety programs.

Advance registration is required, and attendance will be limited to the first 300 persons. Registration closes October 7. The fee for the two days is $12. For details contact Ms. Barbara Bania, seminar chairman, Box 865, Sacramento, CA 95804, telephone (916) 445-0527.

Swanson's primary duty will be to assist Bieler in overseeing the day-to-day operations of the Zoo. Some departments which had reported to Bieler will now report to Swanson instead.

Demo Leader Registers Squawk On Screening

Neil Good, San Diego County Democratic Chairman, said that Bert Coffey, California Democratic Party State Chair, has added his protest to that of local Democrats who object to the manner in which the Judicial Screening Committee is conducting its search for a new San Diego U. S. Attorney.

In a telegram to U. S. Senator Alan Cranston, Coffey said, "I understand the Judicial Screening Committee's responsibilities and that your influence is obviously reduced, but I also believe that you can't take politics out of political decisions and am sure that you can find a Democratic attorney who could fill the position with dignity and wisdom in that very important city and county."

Last weekend Good wrote Senator Cranston that the Executive Committee of the S.D. County Democratic Committee "strongly objects to the manner in which the Commission has conducted its screening of candidates for U. S. Attorney. The Committee believes that each of the Democrats interviewed by the Commission are competent and qualified for the position of U. S. Attorney.

"Appointment of anyone other than a Democrat would have an enormously negative impact upon Democratic efforts in this county at a time when we are trying to revitalize the local party," Good said.

W. Coast U. Offers Computor Program

This Fall, West Coast University will again offer its fully accredited graduate program in Computer Science to all qualified students in the San Diego area.

By attending classes after work on Monday and Wednesday evenings beginning October 24, students may earn Master of Science degrees in 18 months of concentrated, part-time study — or even less time if they have appropriate transfer credit.

The courses are taught by professional software specialists who are also experienced instructors at the graduate level.

The University has afforded thousands of working men and women in Los Angeles and Orange Counties opportunities to combine full-time jobs with quality, cost/effective undergraduate and graduate programs in science, engineering and management.

Interested San Diegans may find out more about the Computer Science program and W. Coast U. at the San Diego Hilton (I-5 on Mission Bay) from 3 to 8 p.m. on September 12 and 13 and again on October 4 and 5. Students may also call the University at 542-3923, ext. 611.

Ask Your C.H.P.

CHP Capt. C.M. Douglas

Last week's answer said you could leave a disabled vehicle on the freeway for up to four hours. After that time, the California Highway Patrol legally may tow the vehicles away.

If you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may appear to you, ask it. It may save you a citation — or even your life.

Write in care of this newspaper. You do not have to sign the letter and please allow about three weeks for the reply to appear.

This Week's Question:

A couple of years ago I remember seeing road blocks for safety checks. Whatever happened to those checks?

This Week's Answer:

The Passenger Vehicle Inspection program was an $8 million expenditure on behalf of the CHP. Due to drastic reductions to the CHP budget in July 1975, the program had to be deleted. The Department had to consider its priorities and since mechanical defects cause less than 6% of the accidents, especially with new cars now having additional safety requirements, the Department decided to use the money for other accident prevention programs. Although you won't find any more safety checks, each individual Officer on the road has taken up the responsibility of checking on observable mechanical violations.

Coronado Claims Title Of U.S. 'Drinkingest'

By Susanne Williams

Coronado's official crime index, based mainly on bicycle thefts and burglaries, does not reflect the major problem this California city of approximately 20,000 inhabitants, is faced with: Alcoholism.

Yet, additional statistics reveal alarming figures. With 340 arrests Coronado held the highest national record of alcohol-related offenses per capita in 1975.

In 1976, the city broke its own record with 625 arrests, mostly for drunk driving.

From January, 1977, to May, 1977, the number of arrests had already climbed to 456.

"This is a drinking town," Chief of Police Arthur G. LeBlanc said. He believes that the general public drinks increasingly more and Coronado with its two naval bases — North Island Naval Air Station and Coronado Amphibious Base — contributes to the overall trend by its additional share of military drinkers.

60 to 65 per cent of all alcohol-related arrests involve naval personnel, although the number varies with the number of ships in port. And arrests are expensive for civilians but more costly to Navy personnel: First offenses, once brought to court, can result in a fine of up to $500 or a year in prison. Sentences for second arrests entail 5 days in prison plus first offense punishment.

Navy Handles Its Own

All arrests made in Coronado involving naval personnel are automatically reported to the offender's command and dealt with by the Navy's internal disciplinary system.

According to Lt. (USN) Tully S. Lale, Director of the Counseling and Assistance Center/Alcohol Rehabilitation Drydock (CAAC/ARD) at the Naval Air Station, double sentences for alcohol-related offenses are quite possible.

The CAAC/ARD program functions primarily as a screening and evaluating center for identified alcohol abusers and offers rehabilitation alternatives. Under the Navy Alcohol Safety Action Program (NASAP) Lt. Lale and his staff screen approximately 250 DWI — Driving While under the Influence — cases a month.

NASAP is the Navy's response to the recognized problem of alcohol abuse among its members and includes medical treatment, inpatient or outpatient counseling. Program participation — voluntary only in 5 per cent of all cases — is part of the overall sentence given in civilian courts and has to be completed fully.

The program's recovery rate for alcohol abusers (measured by one or two years of sobriety) amounts to approximately 80 per cent — and is considered higher than the program-related drug recovery rate of approximately 30 per cent.

Second Offenders

Yet, second-time offenders exist and are usually faced with an "unsuitable" discharge for alcohol abuse after two formal treatments under the Navy's rehabilitation program.

Not included in the program, however, are Navy dependents. Yet, spouses and children, too, contribute to Coronado's high rate of alcohol-related offenses.

According to LeBlanc, absenteeism of too many military fathers or husbands worsens a problem created by increasing permissiveness in child-rearing and rootlessness of Navy families.

Many Navy wives whose husbands are on Western Pacific cruises, "catches a lot of hell." as LeBlanc points out. Often suspected of invalidating the need for organized prostitution — "they give it away," LeBlanc said. "They are also believed to be kitchen drinkers."

The Navy, often refers dependents to civilian treatment centers, for mixing service members and dependents in rehabilitation programs creates bad morale. "We try to keep dependents out," Lale said.

The Navy also tries to treat enlisted personnel and officers in different programs. The arrest ratio for officers vs. enlisted personnel, incidentally, is 1:20 as compared with the general manpower rate of 1:8. Records. however, do not show a difference in arrest ratio when it comes to race or gender.

"Alcohol, more than any other drug, causes most problems," William H. De Lorie, Security Operations Officer at North Island, explained. He regards peer pressure as one of the underlying causes for the Navy's increasing alcohol problem.

To Lt. Lale alcoholism is an escape mechanism for tension and loneliness. As opposed to drug-abusers, alcohol abusers are generally 25 years and older and show a higher level of maturity. Drug abusers are usually 17-22 years of age and suffer a lack of positive role model.

According to De Lorie, the Navy screens its personnel for known alcoholism prior to their entrance in the service, and prohibits alcohol on its ships. But service clubs continue to serve alcohol at reduced prices, social functions encourage drinking and alcohol can be found in Navy barracks. "Everybody's got liquor in their rooms," De Lorie said.

Weekends are particularly prone to alcohol-related incidents involving Navy personnel. Coronado police cars can be found in increasing numbers around the bases after Fridays' happy hours and police officers know where and when to find drunk drivers.

Suspects are usually stopped, asked about alcohol consumption and required to perform various physical exercises. If suspects fail to perform adequately they are arrested and taken to the police station on Orange ave. where additional tests are administered and recorded on film.

Under the doctrine of hot pursuit, drunken driving suspects can also be followed from the city into the bases. A red phone at the base police office is connected to the Coronado Police department. This assures additional cooperation between law enforcement officials.

Combined law enforcement efforts undoubtedly contribute to Coronado's high alcohol-related arrests. But, as Lt. Lale pointed out, arrests are also "a lucrative source of revenue."

Under state law, 75 per cent of all alcohol-related fines are returned to the city (25 per cent go to the county). And the Coronado Police Department receives almost 100 per cent of its funds from the city.

LeBlanc claims that the City Council approves of his strict law enforcement policy with regard to drunk driving. "A city gets the law enforcement it deserves," he said.

The City Council will soon have to decide on LeBlanc's request for an increase in his force of 29 sworn officers. To put an additional officer on the force for 24 hours a day requires 5.5 men or $130,000 annually.

LeBlanc presently lobbies for such an increase in the community. In his own words he is "a political animal and I know how the system works."

Drunk driving arrests, in the meantime, will continue to go up.

DMV Returns Money To State Treasury

Nearly $8 million of unused 1976-77 fiscal year funds have been returned to the state by the Department of Motor Vehicles bringing the three-year total of funds returned by DMV to more than $20 million.

Most of the '76-'77 savings came from 337 headquarters positions not filled even though Legislature provided the funds for their salaries, totaling $5.7 million.

Untouched funds of $2.8 million for operating expenses — equipment, travel, maintenance, and miscellaneous housekeeping costs — and $64,950 in unexpended minor capital outlay funds brought the total to $8.7 million.

Budgeted funds returned to the state in the last two years totaled $4,855,577 for 1974-75 and $7,824,135 for 1975-76.

SUPERIOR SERVICE AWARD — Lemon Grove Postmaster Arthur O. Martinez presents to Lemon Grove Post Office employee Wesley Williamson a certificate and a check for $200. Permits Now Required For Antique, Art Shows

The Board of Supervisors forwarded the proposed amendment to the Environmental Analysis Division for processing after voting unanimously to direct the County Planning Commission to schedule a public hearing on antique and art shows in unincorporated areas.

The proposed amendment to the Zoning Ordinance would read as follows: "CARNIVALS OR ANTIQUE SHOWS. Notwithstanding any other provisions of the ordinance, the Sheriff may without notice, public hearing or other procedure prescribed in Article XXXI for the issuance of a special permit, issue a special permit authorizing the operation of a circus or a carnival for a period not to exceed five days in any zone other than R-1, R-1-A, R-1-B, R-1 (15) Zone.

The Sheriff may without notice issue a special permit authorizing the operation of an antique or art show for a period not exceed three days in any zone."

The proposed amendment is designed to clarify any ambiguity relating to the establishment of these land uses with regard to antique or art shows.

More New Customers In Area Says SDG&E

San Diego Gas & Electric have added 16,267 new electric customers between January and June of this year, a 49.6 per cent increase over the same period for 1976.

"For the 12 month period, ending in June, we gained 32,925 new electric customers and 15,507 new gas customers," said Ron Higgins, SDG&E economist.

"This has increased our annual rate of electric customer growth to 5.24 per cent, compared to 4.06 per cent in June, 1976. Gas customer growth increased to 3.55 per cent, compared to 2.59 per cent in June of last year," he added.

The company now has a total of 661,684 electric customers and 452,423 gas customers.

June, 1977 saw 2,088 customers added to the SDG&E system. This compares to 1,378 new customers for June, 1976.

From January to June, 1976, the company gained 10,873 new customers and for the previous 12 month period, June, 1975 to June, 1976, 24,542 new customers were added to the SDG&E system.

"We are estimating at this time that 35,000 new electric customers will join our system in 1977," Higgins concluded.

Brown, Van Deerlin, Deddeh, to Host Swiss Park Picnic

Democratic biggies will be at Swiss Park Sunday to gladhand their constituency and friends.

Governor Jerry Brown will be making what is believed to be his first area picnic appearance.

The affair is sponsored by Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh and Congressman Lionel Van Deerlin. The pair's precinct workers will be admitted free but others will pay $3 for a barbecue dinner and refreshments.

The park is on I-5's Main st. turnoff in Chula Vista. At least 150 people are expected.

Utility Tax Raised

Assessed valuation of 173 privately owned utility companies in California have increased by 16 per cent over last year, the State Board of Equalization announced.

Total values are $6.47 billion and are estimated to generate more than $700 million in taxes. Among the counties registering the highest gains was S.D. County with $105.3

Up 6.3% This Year

Gas Use May Top Billion Gallons per Month by Sept.

Californians used more gasoline in June than in any previous month in the history of gas consumption records.

Iris Sankey, member of the State Board of Equalization, revealed a record 988.5 million gallons of gasoline distributed during that month came within 11.5 million gallons of the billion gallon per month mark.

June was up by almost 24 million gallons over May and Sankey predicted California motorists would pass the billion figure sometime by the end of summer.

She added June gallonage was 2.4 percent higher than in May and a hefty 6.3 percent higher than in June, 1976.

The Equalization Board member reinterated gasoline consumption by California motorists continues to rise despite concerted efforts to promote fuel conservation through the use of automobiles which get better gas mileage, use of public transit systems, car pools, and a general reduction in driving.

Gasoline distribution data show taxable sales by distributors to retail outlets, brokers, and certain other distributors. Refiners, importers, and wholesale distributors pay 7-cents-per-gallon tax on their distribution to retailers.

The State Board of Equalization administers that fuel tax.

Sankey said that California's June revenue from that tax was $69.1 million up $1.6 million from May and up $4.1 million from June, 1976 figures.

District Attorney Takes Aim On Public Fraud Activities

By Ed Miller
District Attorney

Public fraud which includes allegations of anti-trust activities, health care violations and the recent $54,000 theft from the San Diego County makes up the largest single area of investigation for District Attorney Ed Miller's Fraud Division.

"Of the 107 fraud cases currently under investigation by the Fraud Division staff, 22 cases involve allegations of public fraud," Miller said.

"The only explanation I can give for the number of cases where the general public is the victim is that it has only been in recent years that county prosecutors have developed the skill and knowledge to combat some of the more sophisticated types of fraud," Miller added.

He said that he assigned a second Deputy District Attorney recently to the two-man section of the Fraud Division which specializes in anti-trust investigations and prosecutions.

The second largest area of concern for his fraud staff, Miller said, involves investors who allegedly have been swindled in stock and business deals.

'We have 17 cases involving alleged stock and business investment swindles," Miller said. Those cases, he said, range from complaints involving cattle feeding "programs" to investments in jewelry which would be sold on consignment.

In addition to the 17 stock and business frauds, Miller said there are 15 alleged land and mineral frauds being investigated by his staff. which range from a complicated ore recovery investment scheme to a case in which a group of men is alleged to have sold millions of acres of property belonging to the federal government to unsuspecting buyers.

Urbanity No Defense

'You don't have to be unsophisticated to lose money to con men," Miller said. "In fact, some of the cases being investigated by my Fraud Division indicate the more urbane the investor the easier it is to steal his or her money."

Insurance fraud is the next largest area of concern for his staff, he said, with 13 cases being investigated involving alleged false claims ranging from $3,000 to $26,000.

A loss of $108,000 is the largest reported theft in 11 cases involving the embezzlement of funds from employers, Miller said. Sales schemes which involve everything from soliciting advertising for non-existent newspapers and magazines to a major "I can get it for you wholesale" rip-off, involve his staff in eight cases, Miller added.

Con Games, Too

The remaining caseload, he said, is made up of seven cases involving traditional con games, five involving construction fraud, five involving franchises, five involving automobile sales, two involving the selling of non-existent roofing and insulation and two involving false advertising.

In addition to the 107 active cases, there are 86 fraud complaints awaiting review by Miller's Fraud Division which consists of nine attorneys and sixteen investigators.

"We are not always successful in stopping fraud," Miller said. "But, whenever we crack down on a specific type of swindle, the crooks who specialize in that type of fraud seem to stay out of San Diego County for a period of time. Later, another group will come in and we have to just start the cycle over once again."
